◆ Faculty

The International Master's Program in Taiwan and Asia-Pacific Studies is a new and experimental program under the College of International Studies at Tamkang University. It is directly administered by the Dean of the College of International Studies rather than functioning as a separate Institute under the Dean. By in large the program takes its faculty from the various Institutes within the College. This provides a solid source of outstanding and experienced faculty members.

◆ Courses

The International Master's Program in Taiwan and Asia-Studies currently offers the following set of courses from which to choose. These courses will be offered to students on a semester by semester basis. Most courses will be 2 credits.

This MA program is a wonderful stepping stone to a practical career, whether in business, government, or education. In addition, the degree program requires only 24 credits plus a thesis for the master's. The average student should be able to complete these requirements in just two years!

Admission to the program, for Taiwanese students, only requires an undergraduate degree, strong English skills, and a dedicated attitude to complete the program.
